

Publication ethics and malpractice statement

Policy and Practice in Health and Safety (PPHS) is committed to upholding the highest standards of publication ethics and takes all possible measures against publication malpractice. Authors who submit papers to PPHS attest that their work is original and unpublished, and is not under consideration for publications elsewhere. In addition, authors confirm that their paper is their own; that it has not been copied or plagiarised, in whole or in part, from others works and that they have disclosed actual or potential conflicts of interest with their work or partial benefits associated with it.

PPHS is also committed to objective and fair double-blind peer review of submitted papers and to preventing any actual or potential conflicts of interest between editors and reviewers.

Problems that arise in relation to any of the above are addressed by the Editor, who is committed to providing swift resolutions to disputes.
